Vocal talent is local teen's best friend

Michelle Friesen wins Talent Explosion

Talent exploded in Elk Point last Saturday evening, as six junior performers, and twelve groups and individuals took to the stage with outstanding entertainment which ranged from country to Chopin, blues guitar to jazz dance.

But the very best was saved for last. Elk Point's Michelle Friesen strutted on stage in a swirl of feather boa, took microphone in hand and captivated the audience to win first place as she vamped her way through her performance of Marilyn Monroe's "Diamonds Are A Girl's Best Friend."

Runner-up was German exchange student Christian Burchen, with a faultless classic piano solo of Chopin's Nocturne. Both winners were invited to compete at Northlands during Klondike Days. A total of twelve individuals and groups took part in the Youth Talent Explosion, including last year's winner, vocalist Tracy Schuh of St. Paul, a dance quartet, three guitar soloists, two of whom also combined talents in a duet, and a vocal duet. Two Elk Point bands received rave response from the audience, with Vision 27's Josh Boyko, Curtis Beardy and Addison Bartholomew opening the Youth section with their crowd-pleasing showmanship, and Addison and Curtis joining guitarists Colin Ference and Jason Kalynchuk in another instrumental.

to go on to further competition at Edmonton Northlands Klondike Days. Kissel's guitar and vocal rendition of the Hank Snow classic, "I've Been Everywhere," included a verse which added in the names of many local communities, and drew thunderous applause from the audience. Runner-up was another St. Paul performer, Ian Brosseau, with another country-style guitar and vocal solo, "Shake." Kelsey Poitras and Veronica Cardinal with vocal solos and Holly Severin and Cory Poitras with instrumental solos also took part in the Junior competition.

Last year's Junior winner, B. J. Bailey, entertained during the judging intermission with a vocal solo of the "Summertime Blues" and a dance number.

The performers were judged by Irma MacPherson, Hollie Matthews and Marilyn Thomas, with Orest Sereda as timekeeper. Talent Explosion veteran Dee Pankiw produced the show, which was hosted by F. G. Miller Grad Class 2002, with proceeds going to the Class of 2002 and Alberta Team Handball. MC was Cory Dolan of LW Radio, and sound was by Rob Walker. The show was sponsored by Edmonton Northlands Park.

The Class of 2002 draw for a birdbath was won by Katherine Shymkiw and the contestants' draw by Addison Bartholomew.

Council ends 2001 with small budget surplus

The Town of Elk Point ended the year 2001 with a surplus and a "clean audit", according to Town auditor Barb McCarthy, who presented the 2001 statement at Council's April 8 meeting. Liabilities and long term debt have declined from last year, leaving them in a good financial position. If the Town didn't enter into any further long term debt, they would have all their debentures paid off in 2011. Ms McCarthy said "The Town did well. It's not a big surplus, but it is a surplus."

Ken Yettaw, safety code officer for the County of St. Paul for the past 27 years and who is retiring from that post in May, visited Council to offer his help in getting a quality management plan underway, and if needed, to serve as a part time safety codes officer. A quality management plan would enable the Town to issue their own permits, set their own rates and monitor their own construction, while providing them with easily accessible information for taxation. There are a total of nine disciplines, including plumbing, gas, electrical, building and fire inspections, that municipalities are able to control for themselves, with the help of accredited inspectors.

Council gave first reading to their newly overhauled General Municipal Plan, Bylaw 615/02, and set Monday, May 13 at 6:30 p.m. for a public hearing on the plan.

Town manager Myron Goyan told Council that the Town would be eligible for $29,840 this year under the municipal sponsorship program, and more if they once again combined forces with the Town and County of St. Paul. With the trail and annexation in the imminent future, he suggested the funding could be used to develop the long-delayed paved walking trail to the recreation land.

Upcoming events were on Council's agenda, with four proclamations.

The Workers' Compensation Board Day of Mourning for those who died on the job was proclaimed for April 28.

National Emergency Preparedness Week has been declared for May 6 to 12, which fits in nicely with the Hazardous Waste Roundup on May 9. Anadarko has agreed to fund the Roundup, and will have people there to assist in the collection of household hazardous waste materials.

Alberta Crime Prevention

Week was proclaimed for May 11 to 18.

June 2 to 8 is Senior Citizens' Week, and in addition to signing a proclamation, Council decided to host an event for the seniors in the community, possibly a pancake breakfast to kick off the week's celebrations.

Council agreed to support this year's Canada Day celebrations to the tune of $500, and added their approval of a fireworks display for the late evening of June 30.

The Town is still not ready to give Anadarko the go-ahead for the drilling of three wells directly east of Aging - our future, but where?

Aging is, as the Lakeland Regional Health Authority says, everyone's future, but whether that aging can take place safely and comfortably in our own community was a bone of contention at last Tuesday's meeting on aging and community care, hosted by the LRHA at the Elk Point Seniors Centre. Deanna Reed, LRHA Single Point of Entry Coordinator, and Edwin Barsi, psychogeriatric consultant, chaired the meeting, which is part of a community consultation process stemming from the LRHA's 1997 comprehensive review of continuing care in the region. Results were released in 1999, entitled "Healthy Aging - a new direction for continuing care," more commonly known as "the Broda report." With a changing future environment, especially as baby boomers reach 65, seniors are expected to remain healthier longer, and to have more disposable income, more education and higher expect-tations, bringing about concern regarding the sustainability of the health care system.

The report outlined a new vision and framework for change to a society where all people are treated with respect and dignity, and have access to information allowing them to make responsible choices. The key concepts include quality living and aging in place, with whatever care and support is needed, and services no

Elk Point, two within less than a mile of town limits. Council had considered approving the wells subject to the prohibition of vehicle traffic over one ton on 50th Avenue, but decided this was unworkable. They have already signed approval for Anadarko's downspacing in the area, but have now tabled approval for these wells until they meet with the company again.

Copies of a Town Revitalization Plan from the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce were distributed to the members of Council, who were asked to prioritize the suggestions and return them to the Chamber.

Council has designated the alleyway between 49 St. east of the fire hall to Highway 41 as a fire lane, by which emergency vehicles will exit the fire hall. Parking in the alley at any point in this block will be prohibited under the designation, and appropriate signage will be installed shortly. The power pole behind the fire hall is still seen as the major problem, but would cost a reported $1000 per foot to move it to an alternative location. "We're still looking at alternatives," said Mayor Frisby, who is also part of the fire department.

New signs for the fire hall, similar in design to the fire department license plates, are in the planning stages, and Council will also look at new signs for other Town facilities.

Also on the Town's shopping list are a five-foot skid-steer mower and two sets of soccer goals, which were brought from the Public Works Committee meeting for approval. Council also ratified a schedule of equipment rates, and a tracking system for people using the transfer station.

longer tied to housing. "Bringing services to the people instead of people to the services" was another concept of the report, which divided seniors into those living in their own homes or condominiums, those in supportive living in lodges and enhanced lodges, and those in facility-based care in nursing homes and auxiliary hospitals. There would be a need for interdepartmental cooperation, with the housing and health care departments working more closely to provide the best for both.

Barsi said Alberta's policy direction regarding seniors is "a shift away from institutions to community based care." Supportive living in the region currently includes 720 lodge units, 11 Alzheimer's beds and 80 assisted living beds, while there are 714 continuing care beds (133 of them in the County of St. Paul) and 23 respite beds in facility-based accommodation. There are also 607 self-contained and cottage units and six adult day support facilities in the region.

Steps toward community-based care include strategies to increase independence, enhancement of existing partnerships and development of additional partnerships, recruitment and retaining of community care staff. Challenges include financial, human and capital resources, lack of housing options and the sparse population in much of the region.

"There is a new vision and new opportunities," Barsi said. "We're on this road together. Our communities are all faced with the challenges of an aging population. We can make this work for all of us."

Deanna Reed distributed questionnaires, and tabulated the answers to five questions regarding aging in the community. Watch next week's issue for a run-down on the replies from this community.

Final call for ball

By Doug Bassett

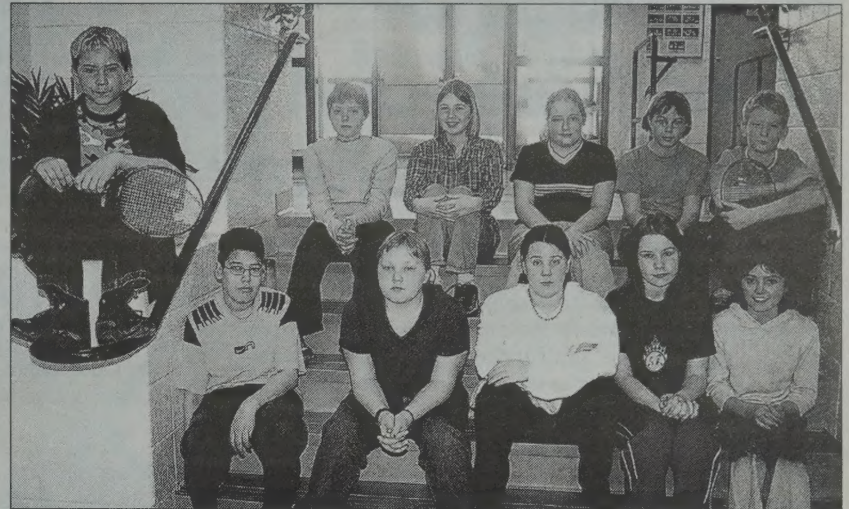

Review Sports

Registration for Elk Point Minor Ball, went really well on this past Saturday at the A.G. Ross Arena the only problem being it was such a nice day, that, not everyone was able to make it, so, were going to give you a second chance, Thursday night starting at 6.30p.m. This year's registration is quick, especially if you were registered last year and all the information is the same.

Volunteers are always needed and welcomed, anyone interested in helping this year should attend the coaches meeting also scheduled at 7.00 on Thursday at the A. G. Ross Arena and if you can't make it, or need more information call Lavern Wilson at 724 3878, tell him your intentions.

It's important to register now, because, on Monday night the Lakeland Minor Ball League will have it's annual scheduling meeting. The purpose of the meeting is to identify the participants and levels of play, all participating teams must be able to provide a home field as well as dates their teams may have the use of it and team contacts. It's either yay, or nay on Monday night. And, if we don't have an enough players at a certain level, and it looks really grim for fielding a team, then it gives parents some time to go to another town where there may be a team and their children can still play. The league play will start on May 1, weather permitting, of course.

And now for our K.A. Campbell sports trivia, what hockey team has missed the post season the most years in a row?

Aging here -can that be our future?

Those who attended last Tuesday's Lakeland Regional Health Authority community consultation on aging were asked to imagine themselves aging in this community. They were asked to describe their situation, to indicate what might prevent them from receiving the care and services they would require to age here, and what opportunities could be created to provide service and support for aging residents.

Elk Point is already the home to many seniors, and offers a number of services and amenities geared toward the senior population, making this, at the present time, a good place to spend one's later years. However, and participants were quick to say this, cuts to services in the health care sector could change this drastically. If seniors have to go out of town to receive many facets of health care, it will make them think twice about staying here for the remainder of their lives. We have already lost our diabetes and foot care clinics, and outpatient physiotherapy service, they noted, questioning what would be the next to go.

Our lodge and seniors housing units are great, as is our extended care, but they are already filled to capacity and will need to grow along with the increasing numbers of aging population. Also needed is a level of care greater than is offered by the lodge and less extensive than that of extended care. Such a facility would ease the crowding situation for both.

The seniors, the caregivers and those from three levels of government who were present, were emphatic, however, that the main thing we need is to keep our health centre operating at least at its current level, for without it, seniors and in fact those in much younger age groups, would not consider Elk Point a safe and viable place to make their home.

The King and Queen visit Edmonton, in the spring of 1939

By Emily MacDonald

Review Contributor

One day my uncle, Steve Berezan, stopped at my school and picked me up and took me to Grandpa and Grandma's place, to get ready and leave for Edmonton the next morning to see the King and Queen. How exciting!

My uncle Steve cranked up his old '29 DeSoto, w loaded up, Grandpa, Grandma, Aunt Mary, Aunt Mona, Aunt Jean and myself (Emily), and of course, Aunt Lucille, one-year-old Milton and Uncle Steve. It was quite a load for the faithful DeSoto! We stopped along the way visiting friends and relatives.

We finally arrived in Edmonton, my first time in Edmonton ever. We got there just in time. I was not quite 12 years old. They pushed us kids through the crowd of people to get a glimpse of two beautiful people - the King so handsome, the Queen so pretty with her most friendly smile. She was waving to all the people. I remember this all so well, just like yesterday. To me she was like a fairy! They walked along a carpet leading to the train, the color of blue with Union Jacks all over it, all decorated fit for a King and Queen. I still see her beautiful smile!

When I came back to school my favorite teacher, Martha Sypcheshyn had me get up in front of the whole class in this one-room school (Middle Creek School) and tell what I saw. I felt so important that morning!

We said good-bye to the King quite awhile ago, and now we said good-bye to this very lovely Queen. She is gone to Heaven to be with her charming husband, there with her Savior, Jesus Christ the Lord, and with the heavenly host of angels all around her. God bless her soul.

Walking - what a way to go!

By Carol Moro

Take Off Pounds Sensibly

If you're looking for an exercise that's suitable for just about any situation, look no further than your own two feet. Every day, more people discover the joy of walking.

It doesn't matter if you're not in shape right now. Walking is the perfect starter activity because you can begin at a comfortable level. You decide how far, how fast and how often you'll walk. (Of course, if you've been highly sedentary, it's a good idea to consult your physician before beginning any exercise program.)

When walking for exercise, you can:

■ Work out almost anywhere, anytime.

■ Set a pace that suits you, no matter what your level of fitness.

■ Enjoy a physical challenge that's easy on your joints.

■ Burn calories.

■ Tone and strengthen calves, thighs, ankles, feet, arms, shoulders, abdomen, hips and buttocks.

■ Go it alone, walk with a partner, or stride out in a group.

■ Get involved easily and inexpensively. All you need is the right footwear.

The trick, of course, is getting started. While exercise may seem like an additional strain on an out-of-shape body, the opposite is true. To build its strength, your body

Our season of discontent

It seems like winter wants to stay with us. We are tempted with warmer forecasts, then something comes to change the forecast. Hopefully spring will really be here soon. It seems like spring is such an important season and we have been waiting and waiting for it to arrive. Diane Pacom, a professor of sociology at the University of Ottawa said: "After all, spring is very Canadian - it's almost sacred, transcendental, to see those green leaves coming out, to see the birds coming back, the sounds, the smells. It's unbelievable." We want that felling of renewal in our lives. So when it doesn't come, it is natural to become depressed. Thus our Season of Discontent is here just because of the weather.

The weather is not our only reason for our Season of Discontent. It seems we are also experiencing some political problems in our province that have hit us during this time as well. The teachers are having problems with the government in settling their concerns, and health care services have become an area of concern as losses are being suggested. Why is this all happening?

According to Allan R. Gregg in his presentation on: "Wake Up, Canada", he stated: "Canadians still know what kind of community and society they want, but seem to have stopped asking for it... the electorate believes what government does has very little bearing on its lives or impact on its communities. When this occurs, the people cease to make demands on government to address even the problems they clearly recognize. From there, it is a small step until we stop even asking what kind of community we want and value. In the end, we cascade toward a society of meaninglessness... The current health-care debate is a case in point. Instead of focusing on the optimum system desired to meet the needs of the population, the debate has too often revolved around the "sustainability" of the existing system and what services have to be dropped to meet this end. On issue after issue, the discourse fails to address the fundamental litmus test of public policy - namely, how do proposed changes meet the public good?"

We just finished attending the public meeting of April 9th, where we as citizens in the community of Elk Point were asked what kinds of services we felt we needed in our community as we age. It was almost a joke! There have been cutbacks and suggested more cutbacks, and here were staff from the RHA basically displaying an example of the left hand not knowing what the right hand is doing or has done. They didn't seem to know of the losses we have already experienced, the possible further cutbacks or loss of health centre services completely. The RHA has made cutbacks for "sustainability." Apparently they look at the whole region and see the identified service in question over the whole region, look at the cost of that service in the whole region, then make a decision to cut the budget for that service. Because they look at the health service in this kind of framework, they have forgotten to look at the people's needs in local communities such as Elk Point. Wait a minute! Something is wrong! Is the RHA working? Is regionalization really working? We are concerned. The Interagency Health Committee has expressed their concern both to the RHA and to the Minister of Health and Wellness. We are currently waiting for their response. ... Yes, this is our season of discontent, and yes, we are trying to do something about it in our community of Elk Point!

community NEWS*Half-pints prove size takes back seat to attitude

Never has a basketball game at F. G. Miller High School been so much fun! The Canadian Half Pints came to town last Thursday, recruited one player from the F. G. Miller student body and proceeded to run rings around the school faculty as they drove home their message that teasing and bullying are unacceptable.

The unique Half Pints basketball teams travel across Canada and the USA and have played 5590 games over the past 20 years. They do charity shows as fundraisers for such groups as Mothers Against Drunk Driving, and are currently spreading the word in high schools that teasing just isn't cool. Six years ago, the Half Pints had a really big dream come true - they went all the way to the NBA, where they put on a half time show for a delighted crowd. The Half Pints founded by the father of wrestler Whipper Billy Watson, and Porky has been with the team since the beginning. Their night-time show is a full 120 minutes of basketball with a team of "eight little guys and our secret weapon" - a 7'9" player who wears a size 22 shoe. "We stick him under the net and we catch up just like that."

Porky Neal is from Elliot Lake, Ontario, Chris Rutte is from Collingwood, Ontario and Little Ricky is from White Bear Lake, Saskatchewan. They are one of three Half Pint teams currently on the go, with others in Toronto and children from a previous marriage, is marrying for a second time in August. Porky, the smallest of TRYING OUT FOR THE NEW TEAM - Brian Poitras gets down to Half-Pint size and tries his hand at a free shot under the guidance of Porky Neal and Little Ricky of the Canadian Half Pints, who visited F. G. Miller High last week with a message on teasing.

Newfoundland. The three, whose height averages 4'3", say "we have to be ourselves, attain the goals we set for ourselves, and be the best we can be." The men "can do the same things other people do, we just do it differently," according to Porky. "Nothing stops me... I have a ladder to get into my Chevy Blazer, and I drag-race snowmobiles." Ricky enjoys playing baseball and soccer, and Chris plays hockey and snowboards. Ricky, who has the three, is the only little person in his family as is Ricky, who has brothers 6'2" and 6'3" and a 6'7" father. These two are dwarfs, with normal sized bodies but very short arms and legs and small feet, while Chris is just a very small proportioned person, the smallest of a shorter than usual family.

Porky said he was teased "from the time I went to school to the time I left school. The last straw was when two guys grabbed me and stuck me upside down in my locker." At that point he left school and continued his education by home-schooling, until he got a call from the Canadian Half Pints. He had to sign a contract with his parents and with the board of education that he would continue to do his schoolwork while he traveled with the team, and "graduated on the road" with a 75% average.

Chris said in his school, "there was a bunch of kids who were constantly putting everybody down, and the school was getting sick of it. They were only doing it to make their friends laugh. I was on the student council, and we wanted the school to be the best it could be. We came together as classes, and put so much pressure on them that it made them quit."

Ricky said that from Grade 9 and up, "the teasing got so heavy I couldn't deal with it." He told those who tease their schoolmates, "you are tearing these people apart, and you might need their help someday."

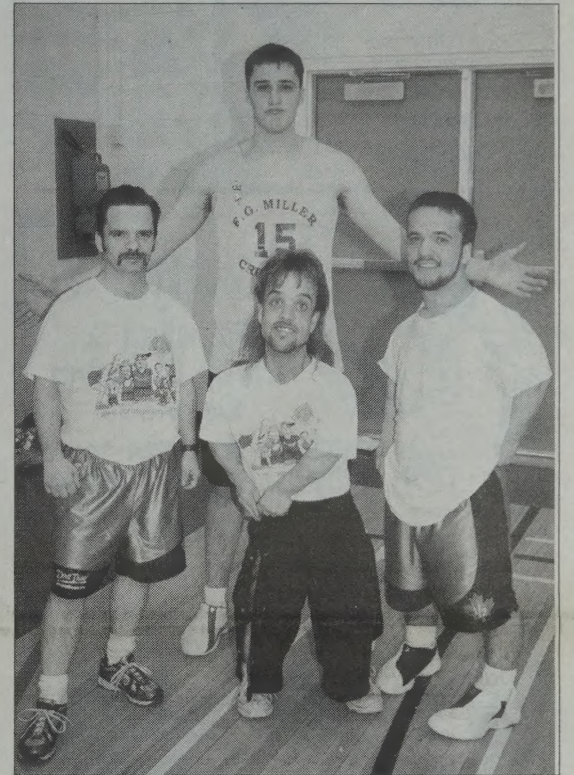

The three agreed that "there are a lot of kids, teens and young adults who like to tease one another and pick on anyone who is different." They suggested spending half a day with these different people, and "see what it's like to be them." For the victims of teasing, Porky added, "don't be scared to tell your teachers and parents that this is happening."

One FGM student got to see just what it was like to be one of the Half Pints. Brian Poitras was asked to get on his knees, to get down to their height range, and had his upper arms tangled in his shirt to approximate the length of their arms, as he attempted a free shot at the basket. Even thus handicapped, he came close, and was added to their team as the Half Pints took on a team of teachers and students. The visitors picked on the referee, clowning around on the court and finally took grinning FGM principal Jim Hawkins prisoner to decorate his face with a cream pie as the student body egged them on.

"Don't tease," the visitors admonished the students in parting. "Always believe in yourselves and your goals, and listen to your teachers, your coaches and your parents."

THANK YOU

NICHOLS, Brent

Lorraine Ference and family would like to extend a heartfelt thanks to family and friends for their delicious donations and hours of friendly visits following Brent's passing. Also thanks to Ralph and Cliff for organizing the wagon ride & Lakeland Meats for the wonderful beef on a bun and the rest of the ladies for preparing the lunch. Thank you to Yewchin's for assisting our family in our time of need (and all the comforting hugs). A special thank you to Melvin Abraham and Leonard Faithful for the ceremonial songs and drums. And also the Heavy Crude operators for taking time off work to join in the procession. The generous donations to the Frog Lake Community Club were also greatly appreciated. The attendance at Brent's funeral was overwhelming. Thank you all and God Bless!

Walking

needs a controlled "push" from bouts of regular exercise. Soon you'll build up endurance and have more energy left over for fun at the end of the day.

Exercise also perks up your mood, eases anxiety, and enhances your ability to handle stress. It clears your head so you'll find it easier to concentrate.

And then there's the boost in confidence you'll feel as you improve your strength, stamina and overall sense of control.

So what are you waiting for? On your mark... get set... walk!
